

MANIFESTO

I consider myself a rebel
for continuously choosing to believe in the arts.
In a world that often teaches us not to.

I believe we are all connected.

Everything is moving.
Everything is intertwined.
Everything follows a flow.

A choreography!

There is always something happening.

The sun dialogues with the moon
the same way life dialogues with death.

Everything may seem chaotic,
but perhaps there is an order
we have not yet learned to see.

I believe the stage does not have to be a stage.
The street can be a stage.
A body can be a landscape.
A crowd can become a composition.
A gesture can become a dance.

If we simply open our eyes,
we begin to notice.
we begin to see
that there are no boundaries.

Dance can speak to art.
Art can speak to technology.
Technology can speak to science.
Science can speak to fashion.
Fashion can speak to film.
Film can speak to the body.

I believe in crossing disciplines,
crossing territories,
crossing ways of thinking.

I believe movement is a sign of life.

To move is to exist.
To change is to live.

And in a world constantly shaped
by division, hate, and war...
I choose to create.
Because the opposite of destroying is creating.
I still believe art can shape a better world.
I know this because art has saved me and many others

So I will continue to create.
To question.
To observe.
To move.
To listen.

I will remain open
to the experience of being alive.

I will follow the flow
while questioning the order.

I will choose tenderness over fight.
Love over fear.
Creation over destruction.

I will forever be a student of life
and a rebel at heart.
